GROUND FLOOR – Summary of Changes

The layout and structure of the ground floor remain consistent between the previous and updated plans. However, a renumbering of rooms has occurred in the updated “Existing Ground Floor Plan.” No material alterations to internal walls, functional spaces, or structural footprint are evident from the comparison.

Room (Previous)	Room (Updated)	Notes
Room 1	Room 1	No change
Room 2	Room 2	No change
Room 3	Room 3	No change
Room 4	Room 18	Room numbering updated

Kitchen	Kitchen (2x shown)	Kitchen appears in two locations (likely split label)
—	Room 66	Possibly newly labelled part of previous general space
—	Open Space, Gazebo	Outdoor features labelled for clarity, not newly added

The changes in room numbers do not correspond to a change in the physical arrangement of the rooms. Rather, they reflect a revised labelling or administrative renumbering for clarity, compliance, or updated documentation.

FIRST FLOOR – Summary of Changes

Similarly, the first floor retains the same internal configuration, but several room numbers have been reassigned in the updated plan. No architectural modifications or changes to room dimensions are observed.

	Room 8	Added to 289

As with the ground floor, the revised room labels reflect an administrative or numbering update, not physical construction or alteration. Room forms and locations are visually consistent between drawings except for one room.

Conclusion

The updated existing floor plans for both Ground and First Floors show no material or structural changes when compared to the previous drawings. All updates pertain to room numbering adjustments and minor terminological clarifications. These changes likely serve documentation accuracy, compliance with updated standards, or internal record-keeping improvements. There is no evidence of new construction, removal of partitions, or changes to room functions or sizes except for one room in the updated plans.
